Your Short Bio for Website and Podcast Directories

Professional writer, Kirsten D Samuel, was uncharacteristically at a loss for words when her husband confessed his addiction to pornography. Kirsten felt the bottom give way. The months ahead revealed the bottom wasn't the bottom, it was deeper still as she was diagnosed with clinical depression and PTSD. That was over ten years ago. Now Kirsten serves wives wounded by pornography. She lives each day with her recovered husband as they choose authenticity, love, faith, fun, and forgiveness. Kirsten and Dave openly speak about the millions addicted to porn and God's redeeming grace.

Interview Content

What is the main message you want to deliver to our audience to help them grow?

The average hurting couple waits six years to get help. Choose honesty today. Face the problem head-on. Work through the pain to the marriage you've desired. Divorce is more costly and compounds the pain. There is hope because God has incredible plans for you and your marriage.

If you were to classify what problem(s) or challenge(s) your story will help the listeners solve/overcome in their own lives, in 2 or 3 short phrases, what would they be?

Finding hope after pornography addiction
Authenticity and accountability starts with you
Pornography is not acceptable. Ever.

Briefly Describe the Ideal Target Audience for Your Message

Married couples, ages 25-60, believe in the God of the Bible, desire authentic living, aren't afraid to confront their issues, desire hope for their marriage, more interested in truth than being right or playing the victim
